Amanda from Bristol says: "Girls don't just want to get married now. They want to be independent. If you want a good job, you have to work hard at school." Amanda's friend, Cathy, says: "It's more difficult for women to get good jobs. They have to be twice as good as men to get the same job. We have to work harder."	Mrs. Armitage, a chemistry teacher, comments: "Ten years ago students used to get marks only for the examination but now they get marks for their work during the year. I think girls are more constant in their study so they often get higher average marks." Mr. Evans, a Math teacher, adds: "In my experience, girls are serious about doing their homework, Boys are usually more interested in computer games and football!"	Ms. Stephens, a head teacher, says: "The exams have changed too. We used to ask students to remember a lot of facts but now they have to think more and give their own ideas.
